Herr Most's office in William street was gathering place of the Anarchist clans in city to-day. In the gray of the morning, hists Torschmidt and Fesselman came own carrying a roll of crape and a re of red flags. With these they bedecked be windows, doorways and walls of Most's ce and the adjoining rooms on the same The time-worn sign on the chief ch's door. " No reporters allowed," was set hidden from view by crape and red ing in emphatic German, and hoarse cheers came at intervals.

At the office of the Leader another crowd pathered. There also was a profusion of gape, and placards were exhibited on the walls bearing the words, "Martyrs for Liberty," "Beware of the Insurrection," "The American Revolution is at Hand."

It is the Leader's last day of life, Editor Rhevitch and his followers having decided that it should cease publication on the day the condemned Anarchists were put to death. By 10 o'clock the editorial room in the rear of the second floor was full of Anarchists. Bell Hinton mounted a chair and harangued the assembly on the event of the day in lineago. He glorified "Lingg's heroic death, the only mercy the bloodhounds of apitalism have left him to enjoy."

The blood that is shed to-day," he continued, "will be amply avenged. They can assistant these four men, but 4,000 will spring up to emulate them in their fight regions tyranny."

Anarchist Wilzig succeeded Col. Hinton. At this moment Julius Bardollo, business manager of the Leader, suddenly became aware of the dangerous presence of reporters and pushed them out of the room.

IN AN ANARCHIST MEIGHBORHOOD.

IN AN ANABCHIST NEIGHBORHOOD.

The Anarchists are most numerous in the Tenth Assembly District, and may be found on all occasions like the present in the alcons in First and Fifth streets, east of Second avenue. They were gathered in mail groups in several resorts in the neighborhood referred to this morning, and notably in Justus Schwab's saloon in First street, her hood referred to this morning, and notably in Justus Schwab's saloon in First street, her second avenue.

As far as could be ascertained there were no formal meeting of any of the groups. A crowd was found in the saloon at the corner of Houston and Allen streets, a favorite resort of Socialists. It was evident that Anarchists and their Socialistic sympathizers had generally quit business and work for the day and gone into mourning for the four men who were to be executed for inciting the Haymarket rict.

An Evenimo World reporter entered Jus-us Schwab's little saloon this morning and bund him arranging the glassware on the helves behind the bar. Schwab eyed the sporter suspiciously for a moment, and when he tearned his visitor's mission, said sternly:

"Not a word for the capitalistic press. It lways misrepresents the Anarchists, it does at know what Anarchism is."

BEVOLUTION PREDICTED.

Speaking of the condemned men, he said:

Brave, noble Lingg! Who can say that a coward's blood flowed in such veins? I am sorry for poor little Parsons. I knew him well. He was an earnest, honest man in his convictions. He had only the good of humanity at heart; he would not hurt affect his Longue and pen, and always used his vigorous thoughts in behalf of the working classes. Parsons's name will never be forgotten, and when this judicial crime is a thing of the past, his memory will be revered as a martyr to a noble and just cause. Why, man, do you for a moment think that such men have water in their veins? They are only trying to raise up the down-trodden: and I tell you that if the oppression continues there will surely come a revolution, for the hard-working millions will not stand it much longer. I do not advocate bloody measures, mind you but peaceful yet firm agitation. The hired minions of capitalism are even trying to deny us the right which Americans have so long boasted—the right to gather and speak freely upon any question concerning the public weal. That right has been danied us in Chicago and in New York. Even in King-ridden Germany the people of our belief are not prevented from peacefully.

Takk OF THE DAY IN SOCIETY.

Mrs. L. P. Morion and her awe week before the Haymarket tragedy. Then he quit to prepare for his weedding, which was to take place in a week. Some delay was made and he was married in Chicago to a Pullman girl on May 17, 1886. Then he came to New York and found work with Foreman Pfingst in the Third avenue car-shops. Pfingst had been his foreman in Pullman, and he says that Schuetz was in that little town the night of the Chicago bomb tragedy.

Behwab became very demonstrative during some portions of his talk and gesticulated a great deal.

GROUPS TO MEET TO-NIGHT.

From a trustworthy source it was ascerained that meetings of the groups will be held this evening in First, Second and Fifth streets, and resolutions expressive of the feelings of the Anarchists will be passed. A mourning badge will be worn for thirty days.

President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Trades, and Edward King, of the Type-Founders' Union, are in Chicago, whither they went to urge mercy for the condemned men. They do not sympathize with Anarchism. They are expected to return on Sanday.

POLICE RESERVES ON DUTY.

Acting on the theory that an ounce of pre-vestion is better than a pounding with long day sticks, Supt. Murray has ordered all the reserves of the police force to be kept on duty in the station-houses to-day. Should any disturbance occur the police will act

The Superintendent is determined The Superintendent is determined to preserve the peace. All crowds will be dispersed promptly, and while freedom of speech will not be interfered with, arrests will be made if revolutionary harangues are indulged in or language is used calculated to inflame the passions or arouse the bad blood of Anarchists. Supt. Morray says: "I have made most extensive arrangements to protect our citizens, and I deem it prudent to say to them that they can rely upon the police to meet any emergency and suppress promptly any outbreak. The entire force of the department is held in reserve at the station-houses, and 3,000 men can be moved to given points at a moment's notice."

"Have you received any intimation of trouble?" was asked.

"It has been rumored that the Socialists intend to parade to-day, and some of the German papers announced meetings to be held at 8.30 o'clock this evening. I have had men out in all directions, and they cannot find any assemblages. I will not permit any parade of the Socialists to-day, at least until they have complied with the law and made formal application to the Board of Police Commissioners. There will be no trouble if the police can prevent it, and I am certain they can be depended upon."

SCHWAR CLOSES HIS SALOON,

At 11 o'clock, the hour at which the quad-uple hanging was expected to take place, justus Schwab closed his saloon. He and his barkeeper put up the little wooden shutters barkeeper put up the little wooden shutters and hung a crape rosette and streamer from the knob of the door.

Then Schwab and three of his followers, who had crape on their hats and in the buttonholes of their coats, left the saloon and joined their companions at Paul Wilzig's headquarters in Fifth street.

A large number of Anarchists have gathered at August Schlag's saloon, next to Beethoven Hall in Fifth street.

CAPT. M'CULLAGH WATCHING THE MEETING PLACES.

The meetings were held with closed doors. Capt. McCullagh of the Fifth street station sent ten of his men in plain clothes to watch the two meeting places on Fifth street and kept seventy policemen on reserve in the station-house. No disturbance had been reported up to noon, MOST SAYS THERE WILL BE NO DEMONSTRATION An Evening World reporter saw Herr Most at his office for a moment. In reply to the question whether there would be any demonstration to-day, he said: "There will be no demonstration. We can't demonstrate every day. The newspapers have been the cause of the hanging. They are the real murderers. IN OTHER CITIES.

A saloon on Springfield avenue, Newark, near the lodging house kept by the notorious Tim McCarthy, formerly of New York, is draped exteriorly with mourning cloth for the Anarchists, who have about eighty sworn friends in Newark. Most was secreted in Newark for a time when he was hiding from the New York police.

DID NOT THROW THE BOMB.

Schuetz Was in Pullman on the Day of the Haymarket Tragedy.

A little excitement was created in this city this morning by the announcement that August P. Wagener, a Second avenue lawyer, had presented to Supt. Murray an affidavit of Frank Markoff, a Sing Sing convict, that Clement A. Schuetz, of this city, had told him that he was the man who threw the fatal Chicago bomb on May 4, 1886.

After a long search Schuetz was found by an Evening World reporter. Schuetz is a tall, spare, mild - mannered German, twenty - six years of age. He lives with his wife in a flat at 1156 Third avenue. He is a cabinet-maker, and has been employed for the past eighteen months in the car-shop of the Third Avenue street railway. He was at his bench when found this morning. He smiled as if amused when the reporter announced his mission:

"I saw it in the paper," he said, "and Mr. Pfingst told me that I had better go to Germany. I told him I guessed I had no reason to go away."

The Sing Sing convict is Franz Markoff. He sent for his lawyer, Wagener, on Nov. 2 and made his affidavit, but it was not given to Supt. Murray until yesterday. Markoff was convicted of arson before Judge Cowing in October and sentenced to four years' imprisonment, He lived with Mrs. Horst, a German woman, whose husband is in an asylum, at 415 East Eighty-first street, until six months ago, when they moved to Afterwards Mr. Schwab changed his mind and entered into a running conversation, in the course of which he expressed his indignation and regret at the turn of affairs.

"I do not believe in precipitating riots or resorting to unnecessary bloodshed," he said. "but the down-trodden workingmen of Chicago had been goaded on to nater desperation by the Pinkerton thugs and the regular police. One poor fellow hurled to his death, and the rights of a man to sell his labor and to organize for mutual protection was denied by the arbitrary police authorities. But I am sick and disputational man's club."

They insured their furniture heavily and fired the house. They got no insurance, the climate grew pretty hot, and Mrs. Horst field to Germany just in time to escape arrest. This was the crime of which Markoff was convicted on the testimony of Schuetz.

Comptroller Loew told The Evenno Woble reporter that he favored the Sunday opening. Mr. Johnston, President of the Metropolitan Museum, who has for years been intimately associated with it, is in rather delicate health. He did not care to talk upon the subject. It is well known, however, that he has always been opposed to opening the Museum on Sunday.

Mr. Huntington, President of the National Academy, talked on the subject with the reporter. "I am opposed to it," he said. "I think Sunday should be devoted to religious purposes. It is hard enough to get people to church without supplying attractions which will help to draw them away from it. The argument that Sunday is the only time poor people can visit the Museum would be met if the galleries were thrown open two evenings in the week free. The electric light would furnish all the illumination necessary. There has been, and is, talk of doing this."

"What are the grounds on which the trustees base their opposition to the Sunday opening?" was asked.

"They are different with the different ones," replied Mr. Huntington. "With several a religious feeling is the fundamental one. Others oppose the opening on the ground of expediency. They think that it might deprive the Museum of donations, or that some of the trustees would withdraw if this were done. Some are moved a little by the extra expense. Those who are opposed from some reason of expediency would doubtless desire it if they foresaw no unpleasant consequences."

The Fates Were Against Him [From the Boston Franscript.]
The experience of the man in Paris who attempted suicide by jumping from the Arc de Triomphe after taking a dose of poison, and was caught by a projecting spike and suspended in mid-air for a very bad quarter of an hour, lends the color of truth to a similar story which is good enough to be told again, if it is old. Determined to be rid of life, a man took a dose of poison, put his neck into a noose fastened to a scaffold on the edge of a cliff, held a pistol to his head, and as he jumped pulled tae trivger. His theory was that if the poison was not effectual the rope would be, if
